

2022 Symposium Session: “Art of Connection” with Consilio

In a time of uncertainty and change, the ability to connect authentically to yourself, your role, your community, and the world is a vital skill. This session will address the future of connection and provide concrete tools that allow you to be resilient in the face of constant change and maintain internal clarity regardless of the external circumstance.

Consilio is a training and development company passionate about inspiring people to lead at every level. We consider ourselves builders of happiness in the workplace and have an unwavering belief that it is possible for everyone to love their work. We believe business begins and ends with people. This truth allows us to make shifts in culture that positively affect not only the business itself but the community. When teams are able to communicate with authenticity and trust, high performance is a byproduct. We are committed to defining success in human terms.

Susan and Lori founded Consilio Consultants to address the overwhelming requests to make work-life more meaningful and joyful. They say they have the best job in the world and after talking to them, you will believe it. They are passionate about transforming cultures to prove that every metric improves when you take care of your people. Their clients and the people inside them are thriving as a result.
